

Abstract

5 The present invention relates generally to a method and system for matching requests with capabilities for goods and/or services under a set of constraints which arise from conditions among the requests and capabilities. More specifically, the method and system of the present invention receives alternative requests and bids, receives conditions among these alternatives and determines combinations of these alternatives that satisfy these 10 conditions.

15

20

25

30

35